How to Get More Paying Clients Without Spending More on Ads

Even if your last campaign flopped. Even if you are tired of people who ask "how much?" and then disappear.

A GIFT. NO INVOICE ATTACHED.

A 9-minute read. Best on your phone.

Written by Emmanuel Uzoma Anofienem, Swellbridge Digital.

LET US START WHERE YOU ACTUALLY ARE

It is 11:40pm and you are checking WhatsApp again

You told yourself you would stop at ten. You are still scrolling.

Forty-one unread. You already know what most of them say before you open them. "Hello." "Is Canada still open?" "How much?"

You reply to all of them. You always do. Your thumb hurts by the end of the week.

Then you check your bank app. Two payments this month. Two.

Your phone has not stopped ringing all month. Your account has been quiet since the 4th.

*Busy and broke at the same time.
Nobody warns you about that one.*

THE QUESTION

“How much?”

You have answered that question maybe two hundred times this month.

You type the figure. You add the breakdown, because you want to be fair. You explain what is included, what is not, why it costs what it costs.

Two blue ticks.

Nothing.

You check the next day. They viewed your status. They are online. They just did not reply to you.

And you sit there wondering what you said wrong, when you said nothing wrong at all.

You are not being rejected. You are being forgotten.

The part that keeps you up

It is not the money. Not only the money.

It is the agency down the road. You know their work. You know it is worse than yours. And they are everywhere — every Instagram page, every WhatsApp status, collecting from people who should have been yours.

It is boosting a post for ₦80,000, getting sixty messages, and closing nobody. Then quietly wondering if ads just do not work in this country.

It is your staff asking about salary while you smile and say it is coming.

It is being the person who sends people abroad while your own passport has not been stamped in two years.

And late at night, the thought you do not say out loud: maybe I am just not good at this.

Next December looks the same

Here is the honest part. None of this fixes itself by working harder, because you are already working hard.

You will wake up earlier. You will reply faster.

You will boost another post.

And twelve months from now you will be sitting with the same phone, answering the same “how much?”, watching the same weaker agency drive a better car.

Another year of your life spent being busy.

Working harder cannot fix this. That is the bad news. The good news is on the next page.

It is not that you are bad at this

You are losing people in places you cannot see. That is all this is.

Not talent. Not luck. Not the economy. Six specific gaps between "how much?" and "I have paid." Every one of them can be closed for free.

We could have sent you our price list instead. You would have deleted it. We would have deleted it too.

So there are no prices in here. Nothing about us until the last page. Every fix in this book is one you can do yourself, this week, without paying anybody.

HOW TO READ IT

Nine minutes, front to back. Then open the free tool on page 19 with your own numbers. That is the part that changes something.

THE STORY

Two agencies. Same street.

Two agencies, same road, same services.

Both spend ₦400,000 a month on ads.

Both get exactly 100 people asking about their services.

At the end of the month, one has made ₦1.25 million. The other has made ₦4 million.

Same street. Same money. Same 100 people.

OUT OF 100	AGENCY A	AGENCY B
Got a real talk	20	35
Actually paid	5	12
Average fee	₦250k	₦340k
Made	₦1.25m	₦4.08m

Agency B did not run better ads. It just stopped losing people.

THE WHOLE IDEA

Your business is a bucket

Marketing is water. Your business is the bucket you pour it into.

If the bucket has holes, buying a bigger tap does not fill it. It just wastes water faster, and now you are paying more for the water.

This is why an agency can double its ad budget and feel poorer at the end of the month. The money went in. It just did not stay.

HERE IS THE GOOD PART

A bigger tap costs money. Patching holes costs nothing but a decision. The next six pages are the six holes. See which ones are yours.

The 9pm message

A woman finishes her shift. Her cousin has just landed in Canada. She sits on her bed and finally decides: it is her turn.

At 9pm she messages five agencies. Yours is one of them.

One agency replies at 9:04pm. A real person, using their name.

You reply at 11am the next morning. By then she has spoken to somebody for twenty minutes and half made up her mind. You are just a late message now.

Courage has a short life. Answer it while it is alive.

“Kindly send us a DM”

Imagine you land at the airport at midnight. Tired, bags heavy. A driver walks up and says: “walk to the far car park and look for a blue car.”

You would not walk. You would take the next taxi standing right there.

That is what happens every time your first reply asks a stranger to do work. Send a DM. Fill this form. Check our website. Tell us exactly what you want.

They have not decided to trust you yet. Every step you add is a taxi they take instead.

DO THIS INSTEAD

Reply where they messaged you. Use your name. Ask one small question, not five. Then offer a time: “Does 11am tomorrow work, or is 4pm better?”

Price before the problem

Picture a doctor who tells you the cost of surgery before asking where it hurts.

You would not book. You would not even believe the price, because he does not know what is wrong with you yet.

But when a stranger types “how much?” on message two, most agencies answer straight away with a figure.

Now you are a price tag. And there is always somebody cheaper.

TRY THIS LINE

“It depends on the route and your documents, and I do not want to guess. Two quick questions and I can give you a real number.”

The sentence that proves nothing

“We have processed many successful applications.”

Read it again. The man who collected ₦900,000 from somebody's brother and switched off his phone has that exact sentence on his page too. Word for word.

So it does not help you. It cannot, because anybody can type it.

Now try this one: a nurse from Benin, Canada, refused once for a missing employment letter, approved eleven weeks after we fixed it.

A liar has to invent all that. It is easier to just say “many successful applications.”

Detail is the fingerprint of truth.

He was not ignoring you

A man calls, sounds serious, asks good questions. You send details. He goes quiet.

You message once more. Nothing. You write him off. Time waster.

Here is what was actually happening. His wife was not convinced yet. His money was tied up until the contract paid. He was frightened of being refused and losing everything.

None of that means no. It means not yet.

Six weeks later he paid an agency that was still around.

MOST AGENCIES STOP AT TWO MESSAGES

Most clients decide after the third. That gap is where the money in this business is sitting.

Leaving yams in the ground

The visa is approved. Your client is happier than she has been in two years. She is on the phone to everybody she knows.

And nobody asks her for anything. No testimonial. No review. No names.

That is a farmer harvesting one side of the field and walking home while the rest rots.

You already paid to plant that client. The second harvest is free.

ASK ON THE BEST DAY, NOT LATER

The day the approval lands: "Can I record one minute of you saying what happened? And who else is asking you how you did it?"

They are not asking if you are the best

Everybody who contacts you has heard the story. Somebody paid an agent. The agent vanished. Sometimes it was a cousin. Sometimes it was them.

So the question in their head is not "is this the best agency?"

It is quieter than that. Is this one real?

You answer that with things a fake person cannot be bothered to produce:

- Faces and names. Real photos of real staff.
- A full address. With a landmark. Not "Lagos, Nigeria."
- One story told properly. Country, timeline, what nearly went wrong.
- Your steps, written down. From first payment to boarding.
- What happens if it is refused. Say it out loud. Silence lets them imagine worse.

The hospital waiting room

Three kinds of people sit in a hospital. The emergency. The booked appointment. The one who came for a check-up.

You would not treat them the same way. Your enquiries are the same three people.

- Ready now — about 3 in 100. Money ready, mind made up. Whoever answers first and sounds sure wins them.
- Soon — about 17 in 100. Waiting on a spouse, a salary, a result. They need a clear plan, and for you to still be there.
- One day — about 80 in 100. Serious, but not ready. Useless to sell to today. Gold in six months, if you stayed useful.

Everyone is fighting over the same three. That is why ads keep getting dearer.

WHAT YOU ARE SELLING

“We sell food”

Imagine a restaurant with a signboard that says: “We sell food.”

True. Useless. You have no reason to stop there instead of anywhere else on the street.

Now: Wood-fired suya pizza. Ready in 12 minutes.
Same kitchen. Completely different business.

“We process visas” is we sell food.

SAME WORDS, REBUILT

For Nigerian nurses with 2+ years experience: your full Canada PR application, submitted in 90 days, and we confirm you qualify in writing before you pay the main fee.

Nobody can price-check that against the agency next door.

Four taps, one drum

Four taps fill one drum. How many people ask. How many you actually speak to. How many pay. How much they pay.

Open each tap just 10% more — so small your staff would not notice — and you do not get 10% more.

You get 46% more. They multiply each other.

This is the whole secret, and it is boring, which is why almost nobody does it. Four small fixes beat one heroic push. And your team can actually keep four small fixes going.

FREE. NO SIGN-UP.

Now use your own numbers

Reading changes nothing. Seeing your own business changes plenty. We built a small tool that does the maths for you.

OPEN ON YOUR PHONE

swellbridgedigital.com/relocation-calculator

In 90 seconds it shows you:

- What one client really costs you.
- What you get back for every ~~£1~~ you spend.
- The most you can pay per enquiry and still make money.
- Which one of your four taps is worth the most to open. It tests all four and tells you.

Nothing is saved and nothing is sent to us. No form, no email. Guess the numbers if you do not have records — it still works.

This month

- Week 1. Count. How many asked last month, how many you really spoke to, how many paid. Most owners have never written this down.
- Week 2. Name one person who answers every enquiry within the hour, and say what happens when they are off. Not a system. A person and a rule.
- Week 3. Write your seven follow-up messages once. Then reuse them forever. Day 0, 2, 4, 7, 10, 14 — and one that says “shall I step back for now?”
- Week 4. Put your faces, your address and one real story on your website. An afternoon's work.

NOTICE SOMETHING

Not one of those needs an agency, a developer, or extra budget. Do them and your numbers move before month end.

We can set all of this up for you

It all works. But it is work, and you have a business to run. So we do it for you — all of it, or only the part that is leaking.

- Your website. One that makes you look as real as you are, so people ask for a call instead of just reading and leaving quietly.
- Sales pages for your offers. One page for each thing you sell — Canada PR for nurses, study in the UK — built to sell that one offer properly.
- Your ads. Set up and run so the right people message you. The ones who can pay, not the ones looking for free advice.
- Your follow-up system. Everyone gets a reply in seconds, even at 11pm. Then the messages keep talking to the ones who are not ready yet, so they come back to you.
- Or all of it together. One system, start to finish, and you just take the calls.

More clients. Same phone. Less shouting.

HOW IT STARTS

One call. No charge.

You call us, or we call you. Twenty minutes.

You tell us your numbers — how many people asked last month, how many paid. We tell you where your money is leaking and what we would fix first.

You get that answer whether you work with us or not. If you want to take it and do it yourself, take it. We are happy.

If you would rather we built it, we will tell you exactly what that looks like, what it costs, and how long it takes. No long story.

We are in Benin City, and we work with agencies in Lagos, Abuja and abroad. Come and sit with us, or we do the whole thing over the phone.

ONE MORE THING

We only take a few businesses at a time, because we do the work ourselves. So if you are thinking about it, call early rather than late.

WHO SENT YOU THIS

If you want a hand, call us

We are Swellbridge Digital, from Benin City.

Tell us what is leaking and we will tell you straight whether we can fix it. These are our own numbers. Not a switchboard.
